except taking up arms, within their power.

I learn of this proceeding from what I deem good authority, and believe it entirely true.

Queer affair, was it not? Quite after the manner of the Star Chamber practice; and yet it all passed without comment or criticism. If it was right to arrest the Secessionists, it was wrong to release them without even the form of law; and if they were innocent, why were they treated so outrageously? War times cause droll proceedings, and this is one of the drollest of which I have beard. Can any one explain its meaning and its peculiarities.

It is said that Gen. Nelson will take the field at once, and go in pursuit of the Rebels, Gen. Buell remaining here with the intention of resting and re-

Among the notabilities in town are Gen. Buell, Gen. Nelson, Gen. Boyle, Gen. Granger, Gen. Gilbert, Adjutant-Gen. Finnell, John J. Crittenden, Robert J. Breckinridge, Gov. Morton, Gov. Robinson, and others of lesser note.

When the pursuit of the enemy will begin I am unable to learn; but the friends of Secession need not fear but he will be given sufficient time to get out of the State, if he is so inclined, with entire easety, and no little profit.

FROM NORTH CAROLINA

News from the Interior of the State-

Some developments of importance have occurred since yeaterday.

Louisville continues very animated in the way of military movements. Regiments are coming and military movements. Regiments are coming and going, and the streets resound to the tramp of armedizance, and resemble the Washington caravansers assisters, and resemble the Washington caravansers assisters and manassas.

The General's seem to be consulting upon the approaching campaign, and important events appear to be on the taglis. They preserve a religious reticence upon their glans and the result of their deliberations, and no cut knows what the moreov may bring forth.

Let no one be deceived into the dangerous delusion that the institution of Slavery is to be demoralized by this war, or its perpetuity impaired in the slightest degree. If there are any persons who entertained this opinion at the commencement of the war, they must certainly have modified their views very materially on observing the effect of the policy of the Administration to induce the claves of Rebels to remain quietly at home and cultivate the fields, which bring forth food for the Rebel army (without which they would be unable to remain in the field forty-eight hours), and also food for Rebel families, who are thus able to fend all their male members into the Rebel ranks knowing that their dear the sentences. ws from the Interior of the State-Gov.
